“We thought we had lost half the email with the migration to Newforma, so it was great to discover that, in fact, the software had culled the 40% that were duplicates!”

Challenges?

- The proliferation and duplication of project email in Public Folders, individual Outlook profiles and network project folders was unsustainable.

Results?

- During implementation, historical project email was moved onto network servers, where it was indexed by the Newforma server.
- Newforma’s de-duplication process reduced physical storage 40%.
- Newforma’s project-centric keyword search made all historical project email, including attachments, easily discoverable.
